spiked Abortion and Mental Health. Abortion is the medical or surgical termination of a pregnancy, one of the oldest, most common and most controversial medical procedures. There are numerous reasons for a woman to seek an abortion, and about one in four women in the United States will have an abortion before age 45, although abortion rates across the country have been declining, according to the Guttmacher Institute. Abortion and Mental Health 1) Women who choose abortion do so because of the Abortion tied to sharp decline in women's mental health ... The mother’s “health” can then be defined as her physical, emotional health, financial health, etc. The medical judgment [for a late-term abortion] may be exercised in the light of all factors—physical, emotional, psychological, familial, and the woman’s age—relevant to the well-being of the patient. Is abortion necessary for the life or health of the mother? The literature to this point finds no psychiatric indications for abortion, and no satisfactory evidence that abortion improves the psychological state of those not mentally ill; abortion is contra-indicated when psychiatric disease is present, as mental ill-health has been shown to be worsened by abortion.
